

Please answer these questions after reading the articles. Use as much space as you need. Add anything you'd like to discuss. I will read from your answers, so feel free to make them anonymous or to write that you would like for something that you've written not to be said out loud.

Court Ruling Halts Restrictive NYPD Practices in Anticipation of Republican National Convention

How does this article make things any different than you thought they were before you read it?

What ramifications do you think this ruling will have? Will it prevent police from hurting protesters in the areas that are deemed legal? How does it help us?

Masked Racism: Reflections on the Prison Industrial Complex

Do you think that people of color are treated differently in protest situations? What have you observed?

If you are not a person of color how can you be an ally to a person of color during a protest situation?

If you are a person of color, would you like to add anything here that I can bring up in class?

Targeted NYC Non-violent Protest Defendants Still Await Sentencing

How is this case a precedent setting case for the RNC protests?

What fears come up for you based around this protest? What seems hopeful?

Transgender Introduction

List a couple of things you learned from this article, or if this seems like information that you already knew.

Low-Income Trans People Disproportionately Exposed to Police Violence, Arrest, and Incarceration, Suffer Special Gender-Related Harms in these Processes

How does this article illustrate difficulties that transgender people face that other people don't face?

How can you be an ally to a trans person during a direct action situation, if you are not trans?

If you are trans, please add anything you'd like to say here:

If you have any additional comments about yourself or safety, please add them here: